

Climate Change & Sustainability

Tuesday 06 December 2022, 09.30-12pm
12 Hamilton Court, Mansfield, England, NG18 5FB

As the dust has settled on the government's sustainability and climate change strategy, how can schools deliver its effective implementation in the context of extremely stretched budgets and limited sustainability capabilities?

Where does leadership begin with such an ambitious programme against the current austerity backdrop?

How do business managers know what questions to ask to ensure resources are used wisely and actions taken are suitable in the longer term?

With award-winning extensive experience in sustainable operations and the built environment, Becky will cut through the potential overwhelm, providing practical advice on how to take a holistic approach to implementing the strategy across the curriculum and estates planning. The workshop takes a systems approach, enabling a focus on short term, cost neutral actions that will facilitate effective implementation of all the strategy's Action Areas in the longer term and deliver action planning grounded in individual contexts.

Becky Valentine is Co-owner at Spenbeck and Lead on Sustainability, Wellbeing & Building Health. Spenbeck specialises in supporting public and private sector organisations to optimise their workspace to help occupants thrive, delivering sustainability, building health and interior design support and bespoke offices – all aligning with the UN's Sustainable Development Goals and with the drive to net zero at their core.

Winner of the 2022 East Midlands Green Leader Award, and an Associate Lecturer with Nottingham Business School delivering Carbon Literacy training to businesses, Becky uses her extensive educational experience and sustainable operations and buildings expertise to provide practical and impacting support for clients to achieve their holistic environmental ambitions.

How to join able

Scan the QR code and complete the application form or go to:
<https://ablepro.info/membership/benefits>

You can contact our Business Manager Emma Cripwell at memberships@able-pro.co.uk for more information.

In Partnership With